

Shamabhala Is Heaven

At this point i have no interest in practicing any sort of a religion on earth this goes for everything from christianity to taoism then the occult religions like the church of satan, freemasonry, the eastern star order and sufism I'm just sticking with pure spirituality with no strings attached. Then the other thing I really don't really want to have any part with is the political institutions to where the political parties are concerned going far left to far right they will never have a vote from me or anybody in my soul group and associated soul groups because on a social observation politics is by in large the divide and conquer strategy of the elite and everything I dislike like criminals, drug dealers, gangs, terrorists, radicals and activists are apart of the political institution structure including the religious institutional structure where those same corrupt elements of society towards everything from christianity to taoism then also the occult religions like the church of satan, freemasonry, eastern order star, temple of set, the sufis, roascrucian order, order of the oddfellows, elks lodge and the lions club all play a role in the social and cultural engineering of these randomly occurring events that most people see the news but don't quite know how to read between the lines where they can't seem to pick these things apart following a really simple pattern and connecting the dots.

So at this point keeping my physical distance from that stuff is key to my survival.
